NAHU Introduces New “Health Coverage Finder” Online Database

Columbia, SC – The South Carolina Association of Health Underwriters introduced its new Health Care Coverage Options Database today. Developed to help more Americans find affordable health insurance, the database educates consumers about coverage options available to them.

“Health care consumers now have a simple, unbiased tool to help them find health insurance,” stated Thomas Peacock, South Carolina Association of Health Underwriters president. “The database contains information about private health insurance coverage, as well as the many public and private programs available to Americans. It outlines on a state-by-state basis all available health coverage programs and their qualification criteria. To help consumers access these programs, the database also provides contact information to enroll or obtain further information.

“Too many Americans are unaware of the health care coverage options available to them. Many uninsured individuals fail to register for public programs for which they’re eligible, and other healthy individuals don’t realize how affordable health insurance can be. The new database provides all Americans with the necessary educational information and tools to find the coverage that best fits their needs. South Carolina Association of Health Underwriters wants every American to have access to affordable health care; this database takes us one big step closer.

“The health coverage database is not only for consumers, but will also allow policy makers, the media and other interested parties the ability to compare health care coverage reforms across state lines, develop policy ideas and investigate state and federal health care programs. Informing the public about available health care coverage options will enlighten them about our current health care financing system so that future health care policy decisions and legislative initiatives improve, instead of harm, one of the finest health care systems in the world.”
